

South China Morning Post – The Student of the Year

The Student of the Year -- Community Contributor (2013)

Winner: Lai Yuet-chi 黎悅知, aged 17, Form 6

Yan Oi Tong Tin Ka Ping Secondary School

Active in social services both locally and internationally, Yuet-chi brought her experience and knowledge from a trip to the North Pole and Taklamakan Desert back to Hong Kong, where she took the initiative to establish a local student environmental awareness group. She hopes to work in public relations for non-profit organizations, to help promote important social causes. Judges remarked that she “thinks at an especially high level and successfully points our critical problems with well structured and supported arguments” and that “aside from outstanding curricular achievements, she has a passion for serving the community in the long term”
